

Shektar – angel March 2003.

I am Shektar. I am an angel. I am a guardian angel. I am the guardian angle of alloya. I am here tonight to bring you love. Many of you are coming up against great challenges in your life. Third dimensional life is becoming a great struggle. Many of you are feeling negative emotions that are bombarding you from the outside. These are tough times for human beings on planet earth. I am here to tell you about love, angelic love. Do you realise you all have your own unique guardian angel. In the room here tonight there are many, take deep breathe, allow those tired muscles to relax. Feel the energy of your guardian angel stood behind you. They are here to support you in love. They are service to you. They were designed this way, you designed us. You projected yourself into the universe, as angels. You created us as a guide, for when you incarnated into human body, you lost your connection to your divinity to your source. We help hold you in the truth of who you are. We are around you always, but you can not perceive us with eyes and ears. Yet we are still here. We need your permission to love you. We do not need your love in return for we bath in the love of the source, the creator. We radiate the light of the source through our bodies and bath you in a frequency that is in harmony with the physical form. You are transforming on your planet. The energy is intensifying, for many of you are walking spiritual path of evolution. You have walked many miles already; it is time for you to pause. Come into the love of your angels, we will soothe the body. We will create a bed of energy you can rest in. There are times for work and times for rest. Soften the body, allow the emotions to subside and feel our love for you. We ask for nothing in return, we are designed to love you.

Your karma is dissolving day by day, many have chosen this way. All that is important is that you stay in the integrity of the emotional body. Many of your emotions are connected to past lives held as memory in the body. You are releasing your karma through your every day interaction, stay in love. Allow the emotions to flow, do not swallow them. Your lives are a great karmic play. Allow the energy of the emotional body to flow and the karmic patterning will be released in a natural form. Trapped emotions will flow, you are all much further along your path than you realise. Have confidence in yourselves. Many of you look for signs and symbols on the outside as credit, to see how far you have progressed. This will never occur until you realise within yourself that the outside are a mirror reflection of inner processes. Decide in this now moment, that you have come very far already, take a deep breathe, relax, allow yourself to pause. There are many beings on this planet that would like to hurry this process. Everything is in its own time. Why run, when you can walk and enjoy the sunshine. Feel good about yourself; you are perfect as you are in this now moment. Feel your angel standing behind you, you are perfect, and you have been no other way. Feel the truth of this in your body. Let go of the struggle. This life was never meant to be struggle, give up this concept, it is an illusion. Life is to be enjoyed, not endured.

It is all about energy, your careers, and your profession have no affect without energy. It is about getting the energy of your higher self into the body. Then every act and deed done in the body radiates energy, you will soon become realised of this. You are kept in a limited perception of realities, here in the third dimension; you have no concept of soul being in body. As the planet raises its frequencies it will become self evident. Trust. All will be revealed very soon. You are on the brink of a great transformation. Let go and allow Gaia, to guide you though. For she will carry you far into the upper realms.

All my light and love Shektar.